

Title: "Interesting, Dramatic, Encouraging Follow-Up Regarding AACC Workshop"

September 25, 2023

Greetings all,

Thank you again for your prayers for the AACC Immanuel Approach workshop. Your prayers were needed and appreciated!

280 participants pre-registered, and there were quite a few more that changed to our workshop during the conference. So our estimate is that we had 300 at our Immanuel Approach workshop. Very encouraging. 😊

I had a sore throat and hoarse voice all week, and my voice gave out completely a few times as I was practicing the presentation. But I got through the actual workshop with enough voice to get the job done.

When we tested the sound equipment immediately before the workshop, we discovered that the sound quality was terrible. Many of those gathering early said that they could not hear/understand what I was saying. There was supposed to be a sound tech person available to help with problems, but we could not find him/her. Fortunately (again, thank you for your prayers), one of the people who had just switched to our workshop earlier that day turned out to be a sound technician, and he jumped into action and was able to improve the sound to the point that it was good enough (still only mediocre, but no longer terrible).

Then, in the middle of the presentation (just before I started sharing stories describing the kinds of healing we see when recipients engage directly with Jesus as the primary therapist), this terrible growling noise started coming through the sound system, so loudly that the audience could not hear anything I was saying. (It wasn't like a clear recording of an actual animal growling, but "growling" was the best word to describe it.) Our volunteer sound technician once again jumped into action, but the loud growling continued, even after he completely unplugged and turned off my mic. He eventually shut down and unplugged the whole sound system, which finally stopped the growling, but he had no idea what had caused it, and no idea regarding what had fixed the problem when he turned everything back on and the sound was normal again. Definitely one of the strangest sound problems we have ever encountered (again, thank you for your prayers).

And then I ran out of time due to all of the difficulties, and was not able to include all of the material I had prepared.

HOWEVER, in spite of all of these challenges, I was able to present the basics of the theory and able to share a number of Immanuel Approach healing stories. We are pretty sure the audience got the most important message regarding how people experience exceptional healing when they engage with the living presence of Jesus, because there were several occasions when they broke out in spontaneous applause and cheering at the point when I finished a case-study/testimony.

Thank you again for your prayers, and please pray that the Lord would bless all of the seeds that were planted.

Blessings,

Dr. Lehman/Karl

P.S. Thank you to those who have written reviews for Mind and Brain. They are very encouraging. 😊
