

Title: Unusual Difficulties, Thank You for Your Prayers

October 12, 2005

Greetings all,

We appreciate continued prayers, since we have had an unusual string of difficulties as we have prepared for this seminar, and they seem to be continuing as we are trying to work on the tapes/DVDs. Among other things, the mother board on Charlotte's laptop burnt out, the hard drive on her desk top crashed, the back-up system had malfunctioned before the crash (resulting in loss of lots of material), the back-up system is now having other problems, Charlotte spent a week dealing with problems on the new computer that we got to replace the irreparable old one, and the expensive digital video deck we use in working on our teaching videos/DVDs is now malfunctioning.

Prior to the last two months, neither Charlotte nor I had ever had a motherboard burn out or a hard drive crash (in 20 years of using computers).

Hopefully, the value of this new material we are working on will exceed the amount of difficulty we are experiencing as we try to complete it.

Thanks again for your prayers, and blessings to each of you,

Dr. Lehman/Karl
